COURTS CIVIL AND MILITARY The Crawley Court Martial, which lasted for twenty-one days, has drawn out the press of England on the system of military courts generally. The evidence for the prosecution ccupied 15 days, and it is said on good au thority, that any one of the English Common Law Judges would not only have got through it, but would have written down the whole question must be reduced to writing, and must be submitted first to the prisoner, to ascertain whether he has any objection to it and then to the court to sanction it, it is then put and the answer is recorded. Constituted as our military tribunals are, it could hardly be otherwise, for the President of a Cour Martial cannot be expected to take notes of all the evidence which comes before .him and decide promptly what is relevant and what is not. Fortunately in this Island wa are not troubled with Courts martial, but the system pursued in our Supreme Court is almost as bad. To lawyers who have been accustomed to nisi prius business in Westmineter Hall, a trial before the Chief Justice of Vancouver Island must be a painful spectacle and to by-standers it certainly seems incomprohensible that men of undoubted talent, as some of our gentlemen of the long robe are, should waste so much time as they ordinarily do in the trial of any important case; in objections and arguments which to outsiders, however sound and strictly legal they may be, sound vexatious and frivolous. Lord I object," has become so completely a part of the proceedings, that we are in constant expectation of hearing from the foreman of the jury that he and his compeers strongly object to their time being wasted, to the want of punctuality observed by the witnesses, the Counsel's Attorneys, and all parties concerned except the Judge, to the miserable pay which they receive for sitting day after day trying a case, and to the general system of the administration of justice; there would be an outery amongst the learned Counsel were the foreman to rise with the well known and too oft repeated sentence " My Lord, I object," but he certainly has as strong a right to urge his substantial objections as Counsel has to reiterate their frivolous objections. If the Judge were able to decide promptly and authoritatively what evidence is admissible, and what is not, there would be scarcely any perceptible delay in the proceedings, and objections would not be so constantly raised nor would attempts be made to drag in evidence which is quite irrelevant. The action taken by the House of Assembly will, it is to be hoped, provide us with a Judge who will maintain his own position on the Bench with dignity. Our present Chief Justice has most certainly allowed too much latitude to the Bar, and it is utterly impossible to restore that confidence which does not and probably never has existed, but which is a most essential ingredient in the composition of a British Court of Justice. Litigation, as it exists at present, bids fair to become a complete farce in this colony, and although we would always advise our friends to keep ou of law, it by no means follows that the existing difficulties in the way of trying cases will tend to improve the tone of public morality; on the contrary, we should be disposed to think it would most unquestion ably lower it. Our Courts, our Lawyers, our Judges, and our Jury system are all more or less brought into contempt and disrepute-legal mind to take in and reject relevant evidence on the spur of the moment. It would be somewhat anomalous under existing circumstances to appoint a lawyer to preside in the Small Debts Court, whilst we have a lawyer sitting in our Supreme Court, and as we have frequently said before one active judge could get through the whole of the business of the two courts. If there are any arrears at any time which are pressing, it rests with the governor to appoint an associate judge temporarily to as mist the Chief Justice in getting through his business. A suggestion from the House to His Excellency to make such an appointment would not come amiss at the present which is alike injurious to the profession of the law and to suitors in the Court. The necessity for having a lawyer on the Bench

has now become so apparent that it is sur-

found to support a Bill to authorize the appointment of any other than a lawye to be judge in the Small Debts Court. The same rules of evidence apply in Courts of Summary and limited jurisdiction as in the superior courts, and consequently require a grant having accepted for their interest 1200 paid wateres.

Lease for 10 years has been given by the Government of British Columbia direct to the "Antler Bed rock Flume Company" (Limited.) 200 Shares have been reserved, to be disposed of by the Directors hereafter for the benefit of the Company as circumstances may determine.

It is confidently believed by experienced miners that the Bed-rock Flume system will work an entire revolution in the mining operation of Caribose, and render large districts available which under the present system are valueless.

Great excitement was caused in 1861 by the rich seposits of gold found on Antler Creek; much ground yielded over 31,000 per foot. It was found, however, that except where the soil was shallow, it was impossible to reach the bed-rock and work to advantage, on account of the immense amount of water and the losseness of the soil, consequently the Creek gradually became abandoned.

The amount of water and character of the soil are highly favorable for hydraulic working, while the fall in the Creek renders it most suitable for a Bed-rock Flume.

The soil on Antler Creek contains gold generally SUNDRIES.

A company formed in Cariboo last season obtained from the Government of British Columbia a grant of the Bed of Antier Creek 16% miles it length by 100 feet in width for the purpose of laying a Bed-rock Flume and Hydraulic Washing

The Antler Bed-rock Flume Company (Limited), has been organized for the purpose of working the above ground, the proprietors of the grant having accepted for their interest 1200 paid are highly invorable for hydraulic working, while the fall in the Creek renders it most suitable for a Bed-rock Flume.

The soil on Antier Creek contains gold generally throughout, from the surface down, whilst the bed-rock deposits have been found to be very rich, the prospects therefore of the undertaking growing most profitable, amount almost to a certainty.

Besides the gold found in the ground, worked by the Company, it will derive great profit from the tailings washed into the flume from adjoining claims; it is this source of rovenue alone which renders Bed rock Flumes so profitable in California.

Under these circumstances the Directors confidently recommend the undertaking to the support of the public.

Applications for the remaining shares to be made to the Secretary without delay.

THEATRE .- Mr. Ward and his talented company will only be with us two or three days longer, and with their departure for Portland the Theatrical season will close for eight or nine months. This circumstance, one would imagine, would be sufficient to ensure a full attendance during the last two despatched from Victoria to New Westminster, or three nights of their appearance, but not wo. On Wednesday evening Mr. Potter could hardly attract a sufficient number to his benefit to pay the gas bill, and last night, on the occasion of Miss Virginia Howard's com-plimentary farewell benefit, notwithstanding the number of signatures attached to the requisition, the house was only half full. Really our citizens give sorry encouragement to the professional ladies and gentlemen when to the professional ladies and gentlemen who have alforded so much pleasure and gratification during the past three or four months to revisit them again. Mr. William Hood called and examined

Mr. William Hood called and examined by Mr. Wood—I am a contractor and have had experience in road making, and live in British Columbia; I recollect the month of June, 1862; I came here about 16th June, 1862; I had previously sent a vessel from San Francisco with stock, horses, provisions, &co., for sale; I arrived here the 16th, and the vessel (the Mary) containing the merchandise and stock came in the same day; I had never been in this colony before; I may have heard talk of the coast routes; had road papers about the Bentinck Arm in California; a man by the name of West came to me to talk about the Bentinck Arm; hat laked about the advantages of the Bentinck Arm route over the others; he took me to Mr. Green and introduced me to him; that was the 20th, on a Friday; I saw him about 11 colock; he told Mr. Green I was the person that Green and he had been talking about; West stand arabile and said I have brough; that Green and he had been talking about West stayed awhile and said I have brough west stayed awile and said I have obodied you together, I think you'll make a bargain and I will leave; at this the first interview, Mr. Green asked me what countryman I was; I believe my answer was that I was born in Scotland; he talked to me also about the ad-Scotland; he talked to me also about the advantages of the Bentinek Arm route above all the others; that they had a Company here that was not considered anything about, and that he meant to throw them overboard; I said to him that I had brought here with me horses and provisions but I could not get a sale for them, and if he would make it advantageous to me and give me a shew, I would make the road; he gave me I suppose, all the information he had, and explained a good deal about it; he said he was the Bentinck Arm Co., and was the only party that could treat with he showed me a bundle of papers and said they had got an assignment from Ranald Macdonald. I think he at that time showed me an agreement for a charter between Ranald Macdonald and the Governor. I desired to see the assignment of Ranald Macdonald, to know exactly how the king stood. He said he could'ut show me the agreement, but said he had agreed to give Ranald Macdonald one-twentieth part of the whole concern. He said he could not find the assignment, that he had mislaid it, and then he said he had one person in the old

Obligations were much more binding than in the draft I had seen before. Some of the recognition fore. Some of it was repeating the agree-ment of Ranald Macdonald. Mr. Cary readit, as there were a number of interlineations and I could not make it out. It was ar-ranged that the steamer should lay over two days longer, and they would make a clean copy of it, and submit it to my perusal on Monday. After talking awhile we went away. This is all that is material that I can recol-This is all that is material that I can recollect. This was on the third day after my first interview with Mr. Cary; it was on a Sunday. On the Monday I still went on preparing getting on board stock, &c. The deed was not forthcoming. I called again on the Tuesday, but still could not see it; they said it was being copied. I called several times and could not see it. The first time I saw it was on the morning of the 25th, the day I left here. I never had it im my hands until just before signing it. It was signed at Mr. Green's office. I read it over. I had previously threatened to take the stock ashore, if they could not get the deed ready. When I saw the deed, I told them I hed not had time to read it properly, and that there were I saw the deed, I told them I had not had time to read it properly, and that there were a great many things in it that were not in before, but that I supposed I was dealing with gentlemen, and they would not take a mean advantage of me. I think there was another paper signed either previous or at that time. I did not understand it. They go and promise to leave it with them, as it wanted the specifications with it. We went to Mr. Macdonald, Mr. Green accompanied me, remarking on the way that he did not wish this agreement shown to anybody, that wish this agreement shown to anybody, that it would make such an opposition with the Bute Inlet and others; it would put an end to the whole thing. We wente Macdonald's bank. Mr. Green made the promise he would deposit them with Macdonald when he got the assignment of Ranald Macdonald, which he could not find. I had only the letter spoken of with me; the letter drew my attention to blazing the trail. Nothing was said, particularly about this, until I had this letter. I read it on beard the vessel. The Labouchere did not start on the 21st, as Licut. Palmer was one of the Sappets and Miners, and was going to look over the trail. Lieut. Palmer was one of the Sappess and Miners, and was going to look over the trail. Mr. Green mentioned I was to keep good friends with Lieut. Palmer. I don't know about any meeting of the Company. The only meatings I know of were the two with Cary already mentioned, We were eight days getting to Bentinek Arm. We got sahore the morning after our arrival. The small pox was raging there, and most of the Indians had left. We got the horses on shore next morning; next day I started; we found a trail. I took tools and provisions, and all inslueder 2 or 3 tong; there were 28 horses; the trail was very busby in places, swampy and a great deal of heavy timber; it was a very rough country; in some places easier; I hired all the indians I could get, and Barry Johnson was my main pilot in getting through along was my main pilot in getting through along bridge and until the retreat of the fugitives. and was the only party that could treat with me, that the others had not subscribed anything; and he did not think it necessary to have anything more to do with them, and that the thing was nearly gone; he showed me a bundle of papers and said they had got an assignment from

Dr. Livingstone had stationed himself on the highest ground he could find, but the last we hear from him is that a fortnight's dysentery had taken a good deal of the "pith" out of him. Still the undaunted doctor, rising from his bed of sickness, set himself almost single-handed to the task of getting his boat overland to Lake Nyassa. How a Hero Died.—Retaining their fire by Wolte's express command, until within forty yards of the enemy's muzzles, the British suddenly poured a terrible running volley upon the French, whose movements to the front were thus checked and paralysed while gaps appeared where the fallen and the fugility had been a moment before. Mentealm now menaced the British left, and on being warmly repulsed his soldiers began to waver. It was at this moment that Wolfe was mortally wounded. He was standing on the right flank at the head of the 28th Regiment when the conflict was most desporate, and where he was dangerously conspicuous in front of the line, when a shot from a rifleman struck him in the wrist, inflicting a severe wound. Then, finding himself anable to stand, with his blood pouring from three wounds, he leaned faintly on the shoulder of Captain Currie of Bragg's Regiment (the 28th); but even while his eyes were glazing, and amid the agonies of approaching dissolution, he never forgot his anxiety for the fortune of the field. "My syesight and strength are failing me!" said he to Capt. Currie, Now it was that, filled with fury by his fall, the whole line advanced to the charge, and, flinging asids their muskets in the old Highland lashion, the Frazers rushed on with dirk and claymore, making a dreadful slaughter among the French, whom Montealm vainly strove to rally nine ranks deep. swamped, the servants were laid low with fever, the cattle roamed about unattended, and were maddened with mosquitoes. The unfortunate Mr. Chapman was confined for soveral weeks with raving delirium. He got better at last, but many of the Damaras died. The boat had to be given up. Chapman and Baines made for Lake Ngami, leaving twenty-two invalids to follow them, who, all but four, were murdered by the Matabeles.

The surviving adventurers were now in the most perilous plight. It was doubtful whether they ever would get back to the colony, for a war between the Hottentots and the Damaras had cut them off from the coast, Such was the deplorable end of the last expedition. The head pioneer himself is surrounded by circumstances which must almost a voinduced him to despair. Le ters written in May and June of this year describe him as being in the Shire country, near the river Zambesi. It seems that the country has been depopulated by famine and slave wars, "No words can convey an idea of its desolation." The few gaunt skeletons who remain are slowly dying in a strange lethargy of despair. Of the few Europeans in the expe-
